This Great January Clearance Sale

Is One Week Old and Has One Week More to Live.

Each day it grows more vigorous and lusty-each hour the values offered in Clearance Lots become greater. It is our first great effort in the Clearance Line and to say we are very much pleased with it is putting it altogether too mildly. IT IS A SALE WITHOUT A PARALLEL. Advertisements concerning it seem necessary only as a medium of information-not solicitation. The prices throughout the store as well as those quoted here are sensationally low, but we prefer them to be considered as incidents rather than features—the natural results of unusual circumstances. The broad guarantee that makes trading safe at this store is in force now, as it always will be-

Claims to Have Proof Now as to All the Assertiofs He Has Made Concerning the Author of "Shakespeare's Vorks."

St. Paul, ponn., Jan. 15.-It was an nounced to-day that Ignatius Donnelly's new book will be a continuation of the elucidation of his Baconian cryptogram theory. He wil claim that Bacon not only wrote the shakespeare plays and sonnets, wrote the Spakespeare plays and somets, but that his pen was probably responsi-ble for the great Spanish work, "Don Quix-ote." Mr. Donnelly said to-day: "I had expected to have it in the hands of the publishers by the end of February, but there are other things in life besides literature, and as I have incontinently tumbled into love with a very charming young woman, I find that Sir Francis Bacon is not as attractive as he was. All his, of course, breaks into my time and deays the book. However, I expect to have to the bands of the publishers about the middle of March. I can scarcely expect the public all accept unqualified my statements as to what I expect the book will establish. I think everything which I set forth in my first book, the 'Great Cryptogram,' was true, but in an incomplete form. I had found the cipher numbers upon which the inner story of

A captain nearby was found to have eight bullet wounds and when told in the hospital that he couldn't get well, exclaimed: "Yes, I will; give me good food and a little time to rest and by all the powers I'll be out of here. My little children need me and I would be a coward to die and leave them helpless." "Francis Bacon, in one of his phyphilosophical works, 'De Augmentis,' had set forth what he called a biliteral or two-letter, cipher, whereby anything could be expressed as by two different kinds of alphabets of different sizes. I will show in my new book that the odd inscription on Shakespeare's gravestone, when the Bacon biliteral cipher is applied, works out, by a regular and consecutive rule, these words:

"Francis Bacon wrote the Greene, Marlowe and Shakespeare plays."

Mr. Donnelly made this observation with considerable force, showing that he at least, believed all he said was incontrovertible.

"The book will then proceed to prove," he added, 'not by arithmetical rule, but by striking evidences and illustrations, that there is a cipher in the Shakespearean sonnets, which describe the events in the times during which they were written. They describe the religious wars of the period, the establishment of the first newspaper, the discoveries of Gallileo and other striking and remarkable matters. The name of Francis Bacon, 'occur repeatedly in Jonson's plays, and the name of Hen Jonson itself is found in the text of these plays. There are even as startling and incredible, as it may seem, allusions to the great Spinish work. 'Don Quixote,' the author of which died in the same year that Shakespeare did, which creates a suspicion that that, too, was from the brain of the same ubquitous and universal genius, Francis Bacon.

"The clossing part of the forthcoming book is given over to an elaboration of that part of the cipher story of the first and second Henry IV. plays, in which the whole history of Shakespeare's youth is narrated. Some of this was given in my first book, but, as I have said, in an imperfect manner. I believe that, in the way it will be presented in my new book, it will carry the judgment of mankind with it. #### COLONELCIES AT A DOLLAR. Virginia Representative Has a Schem for Increasing the Output in That State.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 15.—A great many Virginia gentlemen express their desire every four years to become colonels. The governor can only appoint eighteen men on his staff, and this causes him to have to reject the application of a great many the who would like to wear the prefix to their names. To obviate this trouble a bill has been framed and will be given to Representative Owen, of the house of delegates, who will be asked to push it through. The following is the bill:

"A bill to facilitate in Virginia the creation of colonels. Inasmuch as many worthy gentlemen in this state find great difficulty in satisfying their laudable desires and ambition to become colonels, therefore be it enacted by the general assembly of Virginia any Virginia gentleman of good standing in this city or county may apply to a justice of the peace and, after taking the coath of office required by law, and upon the payment of a fee of $1, such justice shall issue a warrant creating such applicant a colonel, with full rank for life. There are three families, six adults and six children, in the Throop street colony. They came from the same county in Kansas as Yantis, and most of their relatives are already in Jerusalem. Some of them including Yantis' sister, Mrs. George Heyde, have been there two years, and the members of the Chicago colony say they never have heard any complaints of "Mother" Spafford's treatment.

The Chicago converts of "Mother" Spafford have sold all their belongings and put the proceeds into a common fund, by which they live. They occupy the top flat of 6003 Throop street.

David Yantis and his brother John, of Ames, Neb., who, the dispatches said, have sold their own belongings to get money to rescue their relatives, were declared by members of the Throop street colony to have taken their trouble for nothing. Mrs. Charles E. Meyers, who spoke for the sect, claims to have heard recently from the Jerusalem branch of "Mother" Spafford's colony, and says there are no complaints. New York Leaders to Organise an Ultra-Exclusive Club for Intellectual Culture. York, Jan. 15 .- Mrs. John Jacob Astor and Mrs. Ogden Mills are said to be at the head of the most exclusive organization yet thought of in these days of exclusiveness. This will be a literary and artistic organization, to be known as the Tuesday Evening Club. Each Tuesday evening one members will play hostess to the gathering, when some topic of intellectual import will be discussed by eminent speakers provided for the purpose.

The Thursday Evening Club has long held sway in the swell set, but, while this insures amusement, it also admits of a wide range of diversion during the season. It was felt that society was drifting to dancing and vaudeyille amusements in its leisuure moments. The tide must be stemmed, but how?

Mrs. John Jacob Astor took the initiative, and a meeting at her home has resulted in the evolution of the most exclusive club of the year. The plans, though still somewhat indefinite, call for four sponsors. Of these, Mrs. Astor and Mrs. Mills will be two. Others named among its adherents are Mrs. Henry Sloane and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr. Each of the four "god-mothers" shall have the privilege of inviting live guests.

The Tuesday Evening Club, it is understood, may unbend from its intellectual attitude sufficiently to close with a suppergathering, when some topic of intellectual stood, may unbend from its intellectual at-titude sufficiently to close with a supper, and, perhaps, a dance. And society is on tiptoe of expectation to discover just where these exclusives may decide to draw the Secretary Wilson estimates the annual less from hog "cholera" in the United States from $90,900,000 to $100,000,000. In the state of Iowa alone, where statistics of the mortality of the animals afflicted with this disease have been accurately kept, the annual loss is $15,000,000. He believes that nearly all this can be prevented.

In 1822 there were $2,238,019 swine in the United States, valued at $25,425,452. That was high-water mark. Since then their number and value have been materially decreased by the cholera, and the figures for 1897 were 40,600,276 hogs, valued at $165,272,770. These hogs are worth an average of $5.34 each. Iowa is the largest hog state in the country, the census for 1897 showing 3,737,970 animals, valued at $11,182,330. Missouri comes next, then Texas, Ohio, Illinois, Georgia, Tennessee. Alabama, Mississippi and other of the Southern states. There was a decrease of 5.7 per cent in the number and 10,9 in the value of hogs in the United States last year.
